Family Business

Survivors: Family Businesses That Last

It's an unfortunate fact that family businesses have a high rate of failure. Then again, some family-operated companies that began before the Revolutionary War are still alive and well. What makes some companies survive long after others shut their doors? Read the "Full Article" to find out which companies are among the oldest survivors, and what makes them keep ticking.

Human Resources

Lighten the Evaluation Load

Managers and employees often dread annual assessments. But the process doesn't have to be so difficult for everyone involved. Here are some options that might help give your organization's entire staff a break and make the chore easier and more beneficial.

Management

Best Choice: A Board of Directors or an Advisory Board?

If your business is looking for assistance with strategic decisions, you might want to set up a board of directors or an advisory board. What are the key differences between the two types of boards? This article provides the answer, as well as some best practices to follow regardless of which path your company takes.
