Charitable Gifts of Property: Follow Stringent Rules to Ensure Deductions

Personal Info Saved Articles Refer Colleague Calculators Unsubscribe Feedback

There are tough requirements under federal tax law for deducting charitable gifts of property on your tax return. If you don't follow all the rules, you could lose a deduction. In one recent Tax Court case, a taxpayer's deduction was denied because he failed to obtain an independent appraisal, even though the IRS conceded that he did donate the property. Here are the facts of the case, along with the rules for donated property. Copyright © 2012

Avoid Costly Age Discrimination Claims

Year after year, tens of thousands of age discrimination claims find their way to the EEOC. Depending on the outcome, they may cost employers a bundle. Yet some companies continue to violate the laws that govern hiring. Here's what happened to seven businesses when they were charged with using age as a factor in employment decisions.
