Using Remote Workers? Protect Sensitive Company Data from Exposure

During the COVID-19 pandemic, many companies have shifted to work-from-home arrangements to protect the safety of their workers. This trend is expected to continue even after the pandemic ends. Unfortunately, the chances of intellectual property theft (or inadvertent loss) are generally greater when employees work at home. Here are some measures you can take to protect your trademarks, patents, copyrights and other forms of IP today.

Family Business

A Family Business Does Not Have to Be a Casualty of Divorce

What if a divorce threatens to tear your family business apart? It's bad enough when a marriage ends, but it's even worse when the former spouses both work for a family company. That usually means one or both will have to remove themselves from the business — for a price. This article gives you an idea of how the value of a business is determined when divorcing spouses disagree.

Business Tax

You May Want to Separate Real Estate Assets from Your Business

Many companies choose not to combine real estate and other assets into a single entity. Although there are justifiable legal reasons for doing so, this article delves into the potentially beneficial tax reasons for holding real estate in a separate entity. A sidebar looks at the advantages of separate entities for family businesses.

Personal Tax

Spouses Are Guilty Until Proven Innocent

If you file a joint tax return, you need to be aware of your individual liability. Here's a rundown of how the law works and the "innocent spouse" relief that may be available if your spouse cheated on a tax return and the IRS is coming after you. We'll also explain the difference between an "innocent spouse" and an "injured spouse" and how it can affect tax refunds.
