Build a Strong, Non-Exclusive Board of Directors

Membership in an exclusive club. It can feel gratifying, even thrilling. But it's generally not a good idea for the board of directors of a family business. Many family-owned companies restrict board membership to relatives and eventually pay a price in myopic strategic vision and poor oversight. This article discusses the importance of inviting objective, outside-the-family experts to join a board.

Steps to Help Avert Sabotage by Former Employees

Firings or layoffs can trigger some employees to commit acts of vandalism or violence. And, unfortunately, workforce reductions may have become more common at your workplace in recent months. Severance packages, outplacement benefits and counseling might help, but these won't satisfy everyone. Here are seven precautions to take that can help protect your business from harm.
