Mergers & Acquisitions

Communication Is Critical During Mergers and Acquisitions

There are many reasons for wanting to merge with or acquire another company. But no matter what the reason, once your company makes an announcement or otherwise lets information leak out, be prepared for months of insecurity and jittery nerves among key groups affected by the transaction. Here's a look at the stakeholders who need to be informed and what they want to know.

Mergers & Acquisitions

Expanding a Corporate Business With a Tax-Free Merger

When companies join forces, there are obviously a number of ways to structure the transaction. The most tax-efficient way depends on the parties involved. This article provides a rundown of the key factors to keep in mind when evaluating a corporate acquisition by merger, as opposed to acquiring a business through a taxable stock or asset purchase.
